

POTTER'S FIELD.

The Hotel Royal's Unknown Dead Buried There To-Day.

Five Coffins in the Cortege that Moved from the Morgue.

Supt. Brady Makes a Report Holding Inspector Keely Blemished.

Five of the unidentified bodies of victims of the Hotel Royal fire were removed from the Morgue to Potter's field on Ward's Island, where they were interred.

There were but a few people present at the time, and no more than a few, as the cortege moved solemnly on.

The six and only other unidentified body remaining at the Morgue is that of the man in coffin No. 3. This corpse is in such a good state of preservation and is liable to identification that it will be kept for another day or two.

The body is that of the man who jumped from the Hotel Royal and was killed by the fall. Among the bodies which were sent to Potter's field today was that of the woman in coffin No. 17, which the coroner's jury recognized as that of the woman who was killed by the fall.

SNIPS PRETTY GIRLS' BRAIDS.

Police Seeking for a Mysterious Hair-Cutting Fiend.

Story of His Latest Exploit Told by His Victim, Katie Mayer.

The miscreant known as "Jack the Hair-Cutter" has begun operations again up town, and the police of Yorkville, where he has made his latest appearance, are searching high and low for him.

They have very slender clues to work upon, however, for his last victim, pretty sixteen-year-old Katie Mayer, of 1712 First avenue, can give but a very meagre description of her assailant.

After rather a keeps a little dry-goods store at First avenue and Eighty-third street. Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock Katie went shopping. She stopped to look at some goods in a window at 1570 Third avenue.

Many people were passing up and down the street at the time.

Katie had very long and thick black hair which she wore in two heavy braids that reached nearly to her waist. This is the story she tells the police:

"I had been thinking looking in the window of a hair-dresser, when I heard some one come up behind me, and then I felt a sudden tug at my hair."

"I turned around quickly, expecting to see some friend who wanted to surprise me, but instead I was confronted by a rough looking man, who jumped back at the sight of me, turned and started to run up the avenue."

"I saw him stuffing something into his pockets, which looked like braids of hair. Then I felt at the back of my head and found that my hair had been cut off short. By this time the man had turned around the corner and had disappeared."

"I made no outcry, but went home and told my mother, who called the girls police. The man whom I saw when I turned was dark-haired and about thirty years old, dressed like a tramp. He wore a rough white shirt and the lower part of his face was covered with a stubbly black beard. His hat was a bowler, and he carried a cane."

"Katie's braids had been cut off close to the head, and she was left with some very short hair. She was very much distressed, and she had been thinking of going to the police, but she was too shy to do so."

"The hair-dresser who cut off Katie's hair was a man who was very much distressed, and he had been thinking of going to the police, but he was too shy to do so."

STEEVENSON'S TRIAL.

Lawyer House had vainly objected.

"Who gave you the money to pay for it?" "Tom Stevenson."

"You were never the owner of the place at 157 Bleeker street?" "No, sir."

"Did you deliver the place?" "Yes, sir."

"Who paid you for it?" "Tom Stevenson."

"Did you receive the license?" asked the Court.

"Where?" "At the Excise Board."

"What did you do with it?" "I took it to the place and gave it to Tom Stevenson."

On cross-examination McGraw said it was two years ago when he got the license for the place, but he couldn't remember whether or not he had seen before the Excise Commissioner.

He did remember, however, producing before the Excise Board a bill of sale from Charles Luff, conveying to him the fixtures of the "Slide" for $1,500, and he identified his signature on the application for the license.

He also produced a statement that he did not remember to have made.

"Who gave you this bill of sale?" asked McGraw.

"I did so ever pay $1,500 to Mr. Luff for these fixtures?" "No, sir."

TYPHUS SPREADING.

The awful contagion, a fact that gives the health officers a great deal of concern.

This morning the health officers are removing the clothing and baggage of the afflicted ones to the Reception Hospital, foot of Sixteenth street, was begun.

There the disinfection will take place, and the germs of the disease will be destroyed by heat.

The blankets and beds used by the fever-stricken immigrants have been removed from the small lodgings-houses and will be destroyed.

So far none of the Italians who came here in the Massilia have been traced.

It is more than likely that the disease will break out among them and that several will be found dead in their beds.

President Wilson sent today to the immigration station on Ellis Island the Massilia's passenger list, by which it is hoped to trace all the persons exposed on board the ship.

LIST OF CASES ALREADY FOUND.

Dr. Johnston today prepared the following list of genuine and exposed cases, with the places they were taken from:

108 Orchard street, 4 genuine cases.

106 Division street, 15 genuine and 4 exposed cases.

31 Monroe street, 3 genuine cases.

60 Delancey street, 3 genuine cases.

80 Norfolk street, 1 genuine case.

42 East Twelfth street, 15 genuine and 5 exposed cases.

These people were all on board ship twenty-nine days. It takes from eight to sixteen days for the disease to develop.

Therefore, it is certain that they contracted the disease on shipboard.
